DELIVERED by highly qualified and experienced British nationals, TGavisa brings European Aviation Safety Agency (EASA) compliant aviation safety training to United Arab Emirates, the Middle East and the rest of the world.

Tailoring courses to meet client needs and delivering them locally, TGavisa is committed to helping Middle Eastern businesses grow in the European market.

TGavisa was formed by Justin Goatcher and Terry Gibson to meet the training needs of clients in the Middle East.

Justin Goatcher can back up his consultancy and training advice with substantial hands-on experience and academic success. A degree in aeronautical engineering has been followed by 25 years in the industry working with both the commercial and aviation authority sectors.

Terry Gibson's career started with a Royal Air Force apprenticeship. Terry is well known throughout the industry as a result of his management time within the CAA. His expertise has been sought in investigations into alleged non-compliance, he has provided guidance to various national aviation authorities and was part of the team establishing EASA procedures.

Joining two market leading UK based companies, Terry Gibson Associates and Avisia Aviation Safety Systems, TGavisa offers the widest portfolio of EASA compliant aviation safety training in the region.

Affiliated to the Farnborough Aerospace Consortium (FAC) TGavisa's team has an impressive and unrivalled training record. They have delivered countless courses globally, assisted national authorities and regulators around the world and worked with both the CAA (UK Aviation Authority) and JAA (European Joint Aviation Authorities).

In 2006 TGavisa trained more than 750 people in human factors and 14 non UK aviation authorities have already sent their staff to TGavisa for training.
